

From 2009 Foray's "Pick for the Pot". Photo courtesy of Margaret Boyle

Love nature? When was the last time you kissed a fungus?

We're here to help you learn more about the nature of Nova Scotia, and to have fun doing it. We're the Nova Scotia Mycological Society, and our mushroom forays have brought together nature lovers and experts to find, identify, eat, and even catalog over 150 different species of fungi in our forests. You'll enjoy the finding, identifying, and eating—scientists will enjoy the cataloging, where your fun walk in the woods contributes valuable information to ecosystem science and a better understanding of Nova Scotia's forests for all of us.

Join us September 24-26, 2010 at White Point Resort in Liverpool, Nova Scotia for our 3rd annual foray, featuring talks, entertainment, expert identifiers, speakers, and likeminded folk who know nature and good times go together like mushrooms and steak.

Find our program on the web at www.nsmushrooms.org